Take It Home Questions

Date: 3/7/2012

Sunday's message was entitled The Savior Sees and was preached from Luke 15:1-7. The main question raised in the message was, "Why is evangelism such a struggle for us but so easy for Jesus?" The answer from Luke 15 is that Jesus sees the danger, he sees the value of lost people and he sees the joy.

Talking About Evangelism:

One way that we keep before us this urgency of sharing the gospel with the lost is by making this a part of our normal fellowship with one another. Here are some questions to ask one another.

1. Who has had an interaction with a non-Christian since we last met?
2. Who are you presently praying for?
3. Who might you invite into a church context?

Questions for Discussion:

1. For those who heard the message, how did you relate to the opening illustration about the rescue of baby Jessica? How did you relate when it was said that the lost are in even greater danger?
2. Jim Donahue mentioned that we often put forward minimal effort, we're content with our Christian community, or we remain self-focused as it pertains to sharing the gospel with the lost. What are the main hindrances you experience?
3. Of the three things mentioned (danger, value, joy) in which way would you be fighting to see like Jesus sees?

A post entitled "The Savior Sees" was posted by Aaron Law on the church blog, Life At Metro. You may find this a helpful follow-up to Sunday's message.